Business and HR Manager
Kendall County Sheriff's Office

Dear Ms. Page:

The Kendall County Sheriff's Office generates revenue to support its operations through various sources, including fees. In 2014, the office undertook a study of the cost of performing services for which it charges fees. The intent was to identify activities operating at a loss so that the County could consider changing prices to levels that recover costs.

This letter is our report of an update of the 2014 study. With the passage of time and the incremental increase in operating costs, this study asked if the prices in place now are sufficient to reimburse the costs of the underlying activities.

We enclose findings on the cost of fee services the Kendall County Sheriff's Office.

These reports are based on 1) our review of the County's financial reports, 2) interviews with the staff of the Sheriff's Office and 3) reviews of the draft reports that we performed with you and Commander Wollwert.

Illinois law (55 ILCS 5/4-5001) allows the County Board to enact prices up to as high as the level of actual documented cost if a cost study such as this finds that the cost of services exceeds the price. These reports serve as an analysis to permit decisions by the Board about changing fee prices and they contain your office's recommendations to the Board.

Methodology

Prior to our arrival, we reviewed the files that we prepared for the 2014 study (when we operated as "Fiscal Choice Consulting, LLC." That firm was acquired by MGT Consulting in 2019. We requested more current data on staffing and expenditures, which we loaded to the models before our initial onsite visit.

In the initial onsite visit, we reviewed the purpose of the study and walked Sheriff's Office staff through the types of data we would require. In the process, we identified some activities to add to the scope of work that the office chose not to review six years ago. We asked staff to explain the time that it spends by job title to perform each of the fee activities.

The models for Sheriff and for Corrections follow a similar format. We describe the tables within each model in the sequence in which we present them in the models.

Cover Sheet

This page provides contact information, should questions arise about this work in the future.

Customer Impact

This page shows the findings comparing current prices to costs at the level of an individual customer.

Please see the footnote to the Corrections page. We are told that courts have held that indigent prisoners otherwise eligible for release on bond should not be held for inability to pay.

Budget Impact

This page shows what the fiscal impact would be of setting prices to recover the cost of the work.

Direct Staff Effort

This analyzes how staff is assigned to each activity. Reading across the row, one may see more than one entry, which documents that some services require the work of more than one job title. The office does not keep, nor does it need to keep timesheets. Good faith estimates are sufficient for time estimates. We validate the estimates in a few ways. First, no position may record more time on activities than it has available. Second, the sum of the team's effort has to appear reasonable and appropriate to you. Third, having done so many of these projects throughout Illinois, we were able to spot outlier time estimates for follow-up.

The analysis shows the effort by typical customer, as well as annual hours by activity for each service.

Indirect Expense

Some of the office's expenses are associated with individuals that support the fee services indirectly. The laws governing this type of study allow such expenses to be considered as part of the bundle of costs associated with customer demand. We classify staff into Operations, Corrections, and Overhead. The cost of the Overhead group is prorated to Operations and Corrections based on the relative share of total cost that each represents. We have blacked out the compensation for individual employees in the name of privacy, but the data itself is in the electronic versions of the report, which we are providing to you.

We also include some countywide expense for the following service types: Auditing & Accounting, Administrative Services, Employee Health Insurance, Unemployment Compensation, Facilities Management, and Technology. Our file shows how we allocate those expenses, using proxy measures appropriate to how each service is consumed. For example, Auditing & Accounting expense allocates based on percent of total County expenditure, and Facilities Management based on percent of square footage occupied.

Detail by Service

Some counties prefer to set some prices that recover less than the full cost of the work, even though they are entitled to charge more. In these cases, the desire is at least to recover the cost of the staff time. This sheet divides cost into direct labor, allocated non-salary expense, indirect expense, and an allocation of fixed asset expense. Elsewhere in the table, but not printed, is a reconciliation of the expenses to the starting totals. That is a quality control step we take to verify that all expenses are flowing properly from source sheets to finding pages.

Assignable Hours

Illinois law authorizing these studies references a Federal regulation for how to perform cost studies (2 CFR Part 200, formerly known as OMB Circular A87). Those regulations explain the use of an assignable, or "productive hours" calculation.

The goal of this calculation is to treat paid leave (vacation, sick leave, holiday, etc.) as an overhead cost to each hour worked. If, hypothetically, a person accrued up to 15 percent of all eligible workdays as paid leave, the hourly rate for that person should be their cost divided by 85 percent of their time, not by 100 percent of their time. Take the case of a position entirely engaged in fee work. Unless we followed this convention, fees would pay 85 percent of the cost of the position, and taxes would have to fund the other 15 percent. Using this method, fee customers are treated the same as taxpayers.

Appropriation

It would not be practical to ask the cost of an item such as office supplies used in support of a given activity, because it is not customary to measure the use of office supplies at such a micro level. Instead, we allocate appropriation line item expenses based on each activity's share of total labor. We depart from that if and when a particular item is used differently. Any items receiving special allocations are shown with a blue shading for background to make them easier to identify at a glance.

Fixed Assets

While it is not the norm for a county to depreciate capital assets (i.e., big ticket items that benefit multiple years, even if the asset was purchased in a prior year), we have found many Illinois county auditors who approve of this process. If one did not do so, then years with large expenses would need higher fee prices than years with lower prices. Using the accounting convention of amortization, we assign the costs of such items evenly throughout the many years in which those assets are in place.

Billed Services

This is the place where the activities the study measures are listed. It includes the number of customers served, as well as the number of those customers that pay for the service. In some cases (e.g., serving civil papers for the States Attorney), the County would not charge another county agency for the service. By noting where this occurs, we develop a more appropriate estimate of the fiscal impact of setting prices at cost.

Findings

The Sheriff receives an appropriation that funds general operations, including civil process activities that are the majority of the services charged a fee. The office receives a separate appropriation for Corrections, which also has fee activity. Because the services that we reviewed fell into both of these groups, we developed separate cost findings for each division.

Even in areas where there are fee services, some customers (e.g., States Attorney civil papers, orders of protection) do not pay.

The one fee that we reviewed in Corrections was the taking of bond on process.

We recommend that you revisit these findings every four or five years. Changes in technology, departmental process and appropriations can cause these findings to grow outdated. Unless you face more radical changes, we do not believe it is worth reviewing more often.

Thank you for the chance to be of service. Please call if you have questions.

Yours truly,

Bruce Cowans
